Observes 94th Birthday.

For several years the 21st of September has been a marked date for members of the Gould family, for on that day, children and grandchildren with other friends have been accustomed to gather at the Gould home-stead in Scotland district, to offer their gifts and congratulations to Mrs. Henry A. Gould. On last Tuesday occurred another of these annual gatherings when forty-seven persons were present to pay their respects to the venerable lady, on her ninety-fourth birthday. Among those present was her sister, eighty-seven years of age, who lives in Reading, and her brother, seventy-six, of North Reading. Mrs. Gould has six children living, all of whom were able to be with her on her birthday. She also has seventeen grandchildren and twenty-seven great grandchildren. In spite of her advanced years she enjoys fairly good health, and takes much interest and enjoyment in the observance of her birthday. A fine collation was served and gifts of flowers and sweets bestowed upon Mrs. Gould.

Football

The Phillips Andover team took a decided brace Wednesday, and, though showing plenty of ragged work, nevertheless exhibited lots more football than in the Cushing game. Coach Hawley has a big task on his hands to develop a fast team for he has to teach a good deal of rudimentary football.

Lowell Textile had a rather weak team and though they put up a good fight were clearly outclassed in every department of the game. McDonald Paradise, Large and Porter played well for Andover and Frank Smith of this town put up a good game for Lowell. The final score was Andover 25, Lowell 0.

WRIGHT FLIES OVER HARBOR

Circling of Statue of Liberty a Challenge to Curtiss

DIRIGIBLES COME TO GRIEF

Victory of Heavier Than Air Machines in Three Flights by Dayton Aviator and Glenn H. Curtiss—Latter's Aeroplane Appears to Be Steadier, but Not So Swift as That of His Rival

New York, Sept. 30.—Wilbur Wright circled the great statue of Liberty at the entrance of New York harbor in his aeroplane Wednesday, while two huge dirigibles fell ingloriously to earth. So the first day of flight of the Hudson-Fulton celebration was a victory for the heavier than air machines.

Curtiss was the first to leave the earth. Having spent the night on Governor's island, he prepared his craft and rose from the island for a brief flight.

Two hours later Wright made his first ascent, completely encircling Governor's island and remaining in the air for seven minutes. After an hour's rest Wright again went aloft, this time remaining in the air for six minutes and thirty seconds and attaining a speed estimated at fifty miles an hour. With a glorious sweep out over the bay, he passed entirely around the big emblem of Liberty on Bedloe's island.

Not content with this spectacular feat, Wright made a third flight before a crowd of 2000 persons who had assembled on the island, attracted by the news of his earlier ascents. He did not attempt to fly over the water nor did he go to any great height, but executed two complete circles in the air, then made an excellent landing, while the crowd commented on the ease with which he managed his craft.

In all three of his flights the Wright machine showed greater speed than that of Curtiss, but the Curtiss flier seemed to keep its equilibrium better and remained on an even keel. Wright met with one slight mishap in his first flight, when a wing-tip struck the ground on his landing and considerably jarred his machine.

Wright's action in circling the statue of Liberty is taken as a challenge to Curtiss, for Curtiss was the first to mention such a flight. From now on it is expected that each aviator will strive to outdo the other.

The beginning of the dirigible balloon race to Albany was considerable of a fiasco, but it is announced that the balloons will make another attempt at the first opportunity. Tomlinson was the first to start on the trip which he hoped would end at Albany. He got away at 11:36 and headed north on the easterly side of the Hudson.

Baldwin arose at 11:52, shot out directly over the Hudson and began traveling toward the state capitol, almost over the middle of the river. In a few moments he was lost to view in the slight mist which hung over the river, but he was being bothered by cross currents. A puff of wind snapped one of his rudder ropes and he was forced to begin his descent on the water, 250 feet off the New Jersey shore and opposite 190th street. The balloon came down easily, Baldwin threw out dragnets, and sailors from the battleships swarmed to his rescue in launches. They seized the dragnets and managed to hold up the balloon so that only the motor was wet. Baldwin swung himself into a boat without getting wet. A gang of sailors then pushed the big bag ashore, where it was loaded in a wagon and returned to the starting point. Baldwin's maximum height was 800 feet.

Tomlinson in the meantime had been going northward over land at a height of about 300 feet, when both his gasoline and oil tanks began leaking. Fearing an explosion he was forced to come to earth near White Plains. This descent he accomplished without mishap. He was found sitting calmly in his seat trying to stop the flow of oil and gasoline from their tanks. He was uninjured, but greatly put out that the leaks should have caused him to abandon such a good start toward a $10,000 trophy.

Gets $25,000 For North Pole Story
New York, Sept. 30.—Dr. Frederick A. Cook holds the record for the highest price ever received for a daily newspaper story. The New York Herald turned over to the explorer a check for $25,000 in payment for his story of his trip to the Pole, now being published in installment form in the New York Herald.

Many Disappointed Aliens

White For Governor
Boston, Sept. 28.—The state convention of the Socialist party of Massachusetts was held last evening, a full state ticket being nominated, headed by Dan A. White of Brockton for governor.

NEVER PROVED USEFUL

Ram Katahdin to Be Stripped and Used For a Warship Target

Washington, Sept. 28.—The ram Katahdin, from which so much was expected as a weapon of war, is about to come to an ignominious end. Instead of creeping up to battleships and sending them to the bottom of the sea, which work she was designed to perform, she will herself be the object of attack.

She is to be towed from the League island navy yard to Washington to be prepared for the sacrifice. Here all her machinery and useful material will be removed and then her hull will be towed to Hampton Roads to be used as a target for Uncle Sam's battleships.

The Katahdin is a relic of the days when the ram was seriously considered in naval warfare. The vessel did not fulfill the hopes of her designers and, therefore, never was put to practical use.

GAME REPORTED PLENTIFUL

Season for Shooting Deer in Pine Tree State Opens Today

Bangor, Me., Oct. 1.—The deer shooting season in Maine begins today, extending through Dec. 15. Reports from wardens and others familiar with the woods indicate that conditions are more favorable for good hunting than for some years. The general opinion is that moose are at least holding their own, while there seems to be no doubt that deer are more numerous than last year.

It is expected that about 2000 non-residents will pay the license fee of $15 to shoot big game in Maine this year, and the number of hunters, resident and non-resident, will probably be somewhat larger than in 1908, when the elections kept many at home.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS ARE ATTACKED

Warfare Upon Them Urged by French Episcopate

Paris, Sept. 29.—The French Episcopate has issued a pastoral letter warning Catholic parents in France that the teaching in the public schools jeopardizes the faith of their children. The letter condemns especially co-education. The letter forbids the use of a score of school textbooks, principally histories, and appeals to parents to unite in protection of the faith.

Continuing, the letter "announces that the sacraments of the church will be refused parents who allow their children to attend the interdicted schools. 'God, rather than men, must be obeyed,' the communication declares.

FINED $500 EACH

Cases of Two Contractors Charged With Manslaughter Disposed Of

Boston, Sept. 29.—The Chelsea manslaughter cases growing out of the death of several persons in consequence of imperfect building operations on Aug. 25, 1908, have been disposed of by pleas of guilty which have been entered in the cases of Morris Segal and Morris Gordon, who have pleaded guilty to one count and have each been fined $500, the fine being imposed by Judge Harris in the superior criminal court.

They were charged with having caused holes to be cut in an old wall, which caused the wall to fall with fatal results to a number of the workmen employed upon the structure. There were sixteen counts in the indictments.

"IN EXCESS OF 37,000"

Value of Johnson Estate as Estimated in Petition For Probate

St. Paul, Sept. 28.—Governor John A. Johnson's will was filed in the Ramsey county probate court Monday. The value of the estate is estimated in a petition for probate as in excess of $37,000.

Mrs. John A. Johnson petitioned the court for the appointment of Thomas D. O'Brien and Frederick B. Lynch as general administrators. A hearing on that petition will be held on Oct. 25.

Judge Bazille filed an order appointing Lynch as a special administrator.

PENNANT FOR TIGERS

Double Defeat of Philadelphia Settles Contest of 1909

Boston, Oct. 1.—Detroit, although defeated by Boston, 9 to 7, won the American League Baseball pennant for the third time by virtue of Philadelphia's double defeat at the hands of Chicago.

Philadelphia had a faint hope of winning the flag by Detroit losing all its remaining games and Philadelphia taking all it had to play, but the two defeats made it impossible for Philadelphia to either beat out or tie the champions.

Mauretania Makes New Record

New York, Oct. 1.—Forty-four minutes more was clipped from the trans-Atlantic record by the Cunard liner Mauretania, which completed her run of 2784 knots in 4 days, 10 hours and 51 minutes, at an average speed of 26.06 knots an hour.

VAHEY BEATS COUGHLIN

Has Substantial Lead in Battle For Nomination

CONVENTION IS HARMONIOUS

Bay State Democrats Would Have Had No Difficulty in Nominating Hamlin For Governorship Had Hamlin and Vahey Been Willing—Unexpected Advocacy of Name of Thayer—Foss and Shepard, Republicans, Placed on Ticket—Tariff Reduction and Direct Nominations Favored

Boston, Oct. 1.—The Massachusetts Democracy, in convention at Faneuil hall, named its state ticket, headed by James H. Vahey of Woburn, and adopted a platform of party principles.

In the opinion of everybody it was a harmonious convention, but it was an uneasy convention, which seemed likely at any moment to break forth into something unusual.

JAMES H. VAHEY

The disposition of the delegates to get restless and abandon the program laid down by their leaders was shown when Vahey was speaking at his allusion to Chairman Hamlin.

There was no danger of the nomination of Hamlin. But had Vahey been willing and Hamlin been willing it was remarked that there would have been no especial difficulty in nominating Hamlin right there.

Harmony was not the only feature of the convention, however, for unusual interest was attached to the convention by the fact that two men formerly enrolled in the Republican ranks were named in the Democratic ticket. These so-called "liberal" Republicans were Eugene N. Foss, for many years the foremost member of the "reciprocity wing" of the Republican party, and Harvey N. Shepard of Boston. The ticket:

EUGENE N. FOSS

For governor, James H. Vahey of Woburn, lieutenant governor, Eugene N. Foss of Soltate; secretary of state, Arthur T. Clark of Woburn; treasurer and receiver-general, James H. Bryan of Westfield; attorney general, Harvey N. Shepard of Boston; auditor, Alexis Boyer, Jr., of Southbridge.

Party leaders feared—needlessly, it proved—that the refusal of John T. Coughlin of Fall River to withdraw his candidacy for the gubernatorial nomination in opposition to Vahey might cause a split in the convention, but Coughlin took his defeat gracefully and promised Vahey and the party the unqualified support of himself and his followers in the coming state campaign.

Coughlin's candidacy showed more strength than the party leaders gave it credit, although Vahey had a commanding lead when the votes were counted.

An unexpected incident of the convention was an address by Michael S. Flaherty of Whitinsville, a delegate who claimed to represent the "Democracy of the Blackstone Valley," who, in a burst of oratory, appealed to Coughlin and Vahey to withdraw their names as candidates for the governorship and support former Congressman John R. Thayer of Worcester, whose name he presented to the convention. While Flaherty was given liberal applause, the convention did not take kindly to his suggestion, as the ballot indicated. The result of the voting for the governor was:

Total number of votes cast.....584
Necessary for a choice.....293
For James H. Vahey.....384
For John T. Coughlin.....198
For John R. Thayer.....2

The platform, which was an unusually brief document, declared in favor of an immediate reduction of the tariff on the necessities of life; a reciprocal trade treaty with Canada; the support of only such candidates for public office as are pledged to the ratification of the constitutional amendment favoring an income tax; the election of United States senators by popular vote, and direct nominations.

Congressman O'Connell of Boston also introduced a resolution, which was adopted, expressing the sorrow of the Massachusetts Democracy at the death of Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

Charles S. Hamlin of Boston was the permanent chairman of the convention, which was attended by 812 delegates from 33 cities and 279 towns.

MOORS ELUDE SCOUTS

Sharp Engagement With Spaniards Ensues When They Reappear

Melilla, Oct. 1.—The Spanish troops, which on Wednesday succeeded in planting their flag on the summit of Mount Guruga, retired from their advanced position yesterday. The Spaniards occupied a position on the Beni Ensar ridge after a sharp engagement, in which there were a number of casualties.

The occupation of Mount Guruga was accomplished without opposition, the Moors having vanished on the Spanish approach. Their whereabouts could not be ascertained by scouting parties, but yesterday they made their reappearance in large numbers.

EIGHTEEN DOCTORS LEAVE HOSPITAL

Trustees Refuse to Request the Matron to Resign

Manchester, N. H., Oct. 1.—Eighteen physicians, comprising the entire staff of the Elliot hospital, with one exception, have resigned their connection with the hospital, owing to a disagreement with the trustees over the retention of Miss Augusta C. Robertson as matron.

The basis of the disagreement is said to be the charge that the matron had frequently disobeyed the physicians in the rules laid down for the care of patients; that under her management of affairs the hospital was not conducted with all due care to medical exigencies; that Miss Robertson overruled the doctors in certain cases, and that she had criticized one doctor in the presence of another, etc.

According to the physicians, the trustees took no notice of the request of the medical staff that the matron be asked to resign.

THE GRANGE

Conducted by
J. W. DARROW, Chatham, N. Y.,
Press Correspondent New York State Grange

FARMERS' INSTITUTES.

Co-operation of the Grange With the Department of Agriculture.

The grange in New York state is co-operating with the work of the farmers' institutes in all ways that it can, and we presume this is true in other states. The commissioner of agriculture recently held a conference of farmers' institute conductors, every one being members of the grange. It was decided to hold county conferences during the summer and fall with representatives of the different agricultural organizations in each county, particularly the grange. At these conferences it is to be determined where in each county the farmers' institutes shall be held and what matters of general interest will be discussed. It is not proposed to decide upon locations of institutes in advance of or independently of the conferences which will be held in the different counties. Persons who wish to make such requests should take the matter up with the chief officer of some grange or other agricultural organization within the county and request that he have the claims presented at the conference.

Appreciating the importance of a proper co-operation between the grange and the institute, we asked Commissioner R. A. Pearson of the department of agriculture of New York state to outline his views on the subject. In reply he said: "The grange can and does do a great deal in the interest of our institute work. They can do still more. In the first place, the masters will be invited to attend the county conferences, and I wish that they would consider this an important engagement and not let it be broken unless absolutely necessary. At the county conferences the locations of institutes will be decided upon and to a large extent the character of the program will be determined. Then, too, I wish more of the granges would get in touch with the institute speakers and assist in developing the subjects by having good illustrative specimens at hand when the speakers arrive. Many such specimens can be used to advantage in lectures in the halls. And why should not any grange follow up the institute program at their meetings succeeding the institute, going into the subjects perhaps still further and reviewing the new points and points of most importance which were brought out at the institute? The institutes doubtless do best work when many people feel a personal interest in and responsibility for them. In other words, in the institute work we believe in co-operation, which is a watchword of the grange."

The institutes doubtless do best work when many people feel a personal interest in and responsibility for them. In other words, in the institute work we believe in co-operation, which is a watchword of the grange.

DAIRYMEN'S LEAGUE.

An Organization of Grangers and Other Farmers in New York.

Orange county has for many years been noted the country over for its extensive dairy interests. When New York city authorities placed certain restrictions on the dairymen of the nearby dairy counties, restrictions they believed to be unnecessary even to attain the ends desired, these dairy farmers rebelled, not with a view to thwart the ends desired by the city authorities, but rather to attain them by a different course of procedure. So the Dairymen's league was organized. It stands for living prices, sanitary conditions, pure milk and healthy cows fed on wholesome food. Such conditions can only be brought about by organization of the farmers, that they may put their business on a paying basis so they may derive the means to employ sufficient help to bring about the sanitary stables and keep the cows in a proper state of cleanliness. They can then produce a clean and sanitary pure milk, which must be started right or it never will be right.

In the league dairies there are now 300,000 cows at least worth $12,000,000. It requires about four acres of land to support each cow, which represents an outlay of $50,000,000, and we have invested about $30,000,000 in equipment. We think this vast outlay and industry worth protecting by organization. The object of the Dairymen's league is to put the milk business on a paying basis to the producer. Until we create a financial incentive for the farmer, says the league's president, we cannot look for results satisfactory to the trade.

The West Virginia Patrons' Insurance Company.

The Grange Mutual Fire Insurance company of West Virginia was organized in 1904, beginning to do business with $100,000 worth of insurance. It now covers eight counties and is doing a $600,000 business. During the last five years there has been but one assessment, and that but $2 on the thousand. The secretary is the only officer in the company that receives compensation, and he is paid only for actual services.

Fifty Thousand Baskets of Peaches.
Jay Allen, an extensive grower of peaches near Medina, N. Y., has eighty acres of peaches and over thirty-one acres in actual bearing. His crop this year promises 50,000 baskets, and the price averaging near a dollar, he can buy a new automobile next fall if everything turns out well.

Now they find that the flavors used in "soft drinks" are adulterated and often harmful. The safest "soft" drink is pure water.

ANDOVER AND THE LAWRENCE GENERAL HOSPITAL

Appeal for Help Should Meet Generous Local Response—A Splendid Institution of Great Service to Andover

GENERAL VIEW OF HOSPITAL

The Lawrence General Hospital and Children's Home has just passed its thirty-fourth year, the seventh in its present location. Its claim on the interest of Andover is more than that of a neighbor. Andover depends on it in some degree to take the place of a hospital of her own. And she may properly do so, for while patients who can afford to pay are expected to do so, six beds are available there for Andover patients absolutely free of charge. One of these is for the benefit of employees of the Smith and Dove mill, and is paid for annually by the company. The other five are secured by the bequest of the late Mrs. Helen G. Coburn, and may be used for the benefit of any Andover persons in need of hospital treatment. Private rooms can of course be had at the usual fee.

The medical staff has recently been enlarged and the training school for nurses has had increasing numbers for some years.

Like all such institutions, the hospital must depend largely for its maintenance on the generosity of its friends. The increased cost of living brings increasing running expenses, and if the hospital is to grow in usefulness, its means of support must also grow. Andover is constantly benefitted by its existence, as many of her citizens can bear witness, and it is earnestly hoped that she will do her part in helping an institution which is pledged to help her.

The members of the Board of Directors in Andover have made arrangements for receiving subscriptions, in co-operation with the Directors in Lawrence where a Tag Day will be held October 9. Andover has already used that method of raising money, and it is hoped that equally good results may be forthcoming in response to a less direct appeal. Accordingly, boxes for contributions to be made not later than October 9 will be placed in the four drug-stores, and in the Andover Bookstore. A general contribution is earnestly desired, even of the smallest sums. Subscriptions may also be sent to any one of the following ladies.

Mrs. M. W. Stackpole,
Mrs. W. D. Currier,
Mrs. Augustus P. Thompson,
Mrs. Philip F. Ripley.

Revivals

We noted in our columns last week that the clergymen of this vicinity are making active plans for a revival, to cover this territory during the coming winter. The success of the revival in Boston last winter is undoubtedly an inspiring example to set before those who are interested in the local movement. For a brief while, there is little doubt but that the success of the movement in Boston has had a telling effect upon the morals and lives of many of the people who came under its influence. There is little doubt but that if it is carefully managed and properly directed, similar success will follow such a movement in this vicinity. But very few revivals have yet passed into history and had effects that a year or two years or three years afterwards showed them to be of a very lasting value. Some may question this statement, and many will go into the present movement in this vicinity confident of results not in line with this assertion.

The churches of Andover are the greatest forces for good in the community. No one would like to think of a churchless town, and the splendid men in Andover who dominate the churches and who direct their influence, record every year large achievement for good. They know, however, as do all those who are close observers of the situation, that the need today is to quicken the church from within, rather than to revive it from without. They know that out of every hundred men and women who are allied with their organizations for active work, ninety of them are more or less passive passengers in the ship. They know that these men and women have broken away from the church organizations for many different reasons, ranging from the call of other, and to them, more important interests, to a careless and indifferent neglect without any reason. Few of these people are going to be aroused by the methods that have maintained in most of the revivals that have been conducted. It is doubtful if the majority of them can be aroused by any form of preaching and exhorting save the preaching of professing and working church members through lives that set out more clearly than most of them do today, the doctrines they profess and would promulgate.

The great mass of church leaders in Andover are splendid men and women. There is a fringe around the edge, however, that will never fail to be a handicap to the larger work that the local churches may do, and just so long as the fringe serves as a cloak for characters that are known to be of a very different standard from that which is set up and maintained by the Christian church at large, just so long will the work be handicapped, whether it be directed in regular form or through revivals.

Birds and Moths

Somebody has noted that the movement to protect birds in the hope that they may be larger factors in destroying the moths has not resulted as was hoped. One of our good friends even suggests that notwithstanding this movement to increase the birds of New England, there are fewer birds today than ten years ago. We are certainly not in a position to question this statement. On the contrary, we are rather inclined to believe there is something in it, for several reasons. Notwithstanding the movement to protect the birds so that they would increase and multiply, is it not true that all of these efforts to suppress the moth have been more or less in the nature of destructive forces for the birds?

Every bit of foliage that is sprayed takes away from the birds by just so much their feed and their protection. All the underbrush that is cut operates in the same way. The thousands of men in Massachusetts who are "beating the bush" to protect the larger trees are "beating the bush" also with the result of driving out the natural foe to the moths. This is but one more bit of evidence, showing the importance of individual co-operation in both of these movements, destruction of the moth and protection of the birds.

Editorial Cinders

Many Andover people knew Mr. James Ingram, the agent of the Washington Mills at Lawrence, who died suddenly yesterday, and his death will come to them as a distinct shock. He was a splendid manufacturer, a man of fine character, a leader in his own line of work, and a citizen of the right type. Lawrence could ill afford to lose a man of this kind. The textile world has seen the passing of one of its masters.

On page 3, we publish an appeal to the people of Andover in behalf of the Lawrence General Hospital. It is not a lengthy appeal but it is a direct and clear statement about an institution that deserves Andover help, because it helps Andover. We trust that our readers will give it their generous attention.

THE STATE BY A COUNTRYMAN ABROAD

The "Boss of Essex County."

The newspapers have been filled during the past two weeks with comment upon the text of the overthrow of the Essex County "leader," and the meaning carried with the overthrow. The comment would be more interesting were the premises more carefully taken, for in every case the subject of the article is J. Otis Wardwell, while the title applied belongs to another person. We have but little interest in the result in the senatorial district which has carried with it the nomination of a man for the Senate who has never yet in his entire political career represented in any degree whatsoever the Republican party and Republican principles. There is hardly another district in the Commonwealth where Arthur L. Nason could secure a nomination to the Senate as a Republican. There are two or three others where the Socialist party would find him excellent material and where he would make an ideal candidate upon that platform.

Carried with the nomination of Mr. Nason for the Senate has gone the overthrow of J. Otis Wardwell as a member of the Republican State Committee. A good deal that is nonsense has been said about this incident. For instance, one of our esteemed contemporaries, the Lawrence Telegram, has stated that "J. Otis Wardwell has dominated the legislators on the floor of the House and Senate, etc., etc." If the writer of this had a larger acquaintance with the conduct of the Legislature, he would know that not for many years, certainly more than six, has a single lobbyist, legislative agent, or counsel been admitted to, or seen upon the floor of the House of Representatives. We cite this as a sample of the kind of nonsense that has been published in connection with this incident.

There is, however, much point to such comment as is made in the Newburyport News, part of which is as follows:

"Truth compels the statement that there is a pretty parcelling out of the offices in this congressional district and county. The machine sets its favor upon one man, who will be within the little coterie of office-holders and it bids all the adherents of the organization to vote and work for him. Usually this bidding is done. The people are getting tired of it. They have shown this same disposition before when the issue was drawn similarly to what it has been in Haverhill, but periodically they sink back into indifference until some leader comes along with the force to present the question fairly and squarely before the people, and then he wins.

It can be done again. The people of Essex county can get out from under the domination which now exists here any time they see fit to follow a leader who inspires their confidence, and who is willing to go before the public and tell the truth as he ought to know it, and as almost everybody does know it. Then we shall have the people participating in the selection of their own officials. They do not seem to have very much influence in that direction at the present time. They have candidates provided for them by the bosses of the district and these candidates perform well, because there are no others to vote for. The ownership of the sixth congressional district and of Essex county, an ownership acquired by purchase, can be broken any time the people see fit to rise and do the trick."

We wonder here again if Editor Smith, who is one of the brightest and keenest Republican writers in the State, has not stopped too soon in his deduction. Why did he not go further and make very clear what is known to be the truth, that to overthrow J. Otis Wardwell is simply to overthrow one of the important lieutenants of the real political owner of Essex County at the present time. Editor Smith knows, as do practically all of the live editors in Essex County that for five years the Congressman from the Sixth Cong. District has been laying his plans and making his moves in connection with every office that could be worked to control Essex County. Those who are well informed know that as Senatorial districts have been captured one by one by Mr. Gardner, that as County Commissionerships have been parceled out one by one by Mr. Gardner, that as various Representatives have been elected one by one by Mr. Gardner, that as delegations from the County have been delivered one after another by Mr. Gardner, there has been nothing else as his purpose throughout it all, but to place himself as the owner of Essex County.

The liveliest and most recent of his campaigns add the acquisition of the Essex Club as one more interesting bit of evidence in this campaign of the illustrious son-in-law of the senior Massachusetts Senator. His little cheap man, "Friday," who has gained his entire prestige in the county as the dispenser of his money and influence was within three years placed in an important position in the Essex Club. Little by little the Club has been exploited and developed, as an interesting and effective aid to Augustus P.'s plans. Little by little, the man "Friday" has been developed and pushed ahead in Essex County Conventions and Essex Club affairs so that not a single factor should be overlooked that would aid in making the machine complete.

Today, notwithstanding what the outside newspapers may say about the overthrow of the "boss of Essex County," let no one be deceived into believing that the real "boss" has yet been uncovered. J. Otis Wardwell was but one of the spokes in the wheel; the hub from which oozes the grease that keeps the thing moving smoothly; that causes the spokes to revolve and the rim to turn, is still sound and solid. From it radiate all the necessary construction to make a perfect and complete structure. The label that it bears is that of the Congressman from the Sixth Essex District. The power that it wields is through its complete mastery of the Essex County Commissioners, through a domination of Representatives and Senators in more than half the county, through an ownership, bag and baggage, of the Essex Club, and through a "full barrel," so that the "grease" to keep the wheel a-moving will be found inexhaustible and unlimited.

Unwise Action.

It is a pretty spectacle that the rank and file of voters in Essex County are treated to in the endorsement by the Republican Convention of Joseph N. Peterson of Salem for Surveyor of the Port of Boston. It was eminently fitting that this endorsement should emanate from Mr. Rushforth of Lawrence, but it is rather surprising that some good sober common sense wasn't sufficiently in evidence in that gathering of one hundred and fifty or so of men, to protest. It would be a most improper action to endorse any man, but when to the impropriety of the act itself is added the further burden of this particular individual it becomes very nearly a reproach upon the character of the Republicans of Essex County.

If the bosses of the Republican party in Massachusetts can find no man in the district in which the office of Surveyor of the Port is located, with sufficient brains, ability and integrity to occupy this honorable position, it is to be hoped that no amount of endorsements, rushed through political conventions for such men as Joe Peterson of Salem will have any influence upon them in their choice for this office. There is still left in Massachusetts a sufficient number of Republicans fitted to hold offices of this sort without choosing men of the stamp of this individual whose sole claim to recognition has never been anything else than bluff and bluster. If Senators Lodge and Crane stand for this part of the plan laid out for Essex County politics, they will ultimately find that they will "reap a whirlwind where they have sown the wind."

The Republicans of the County may as well also understand that at this particular Convention, the owner of Essex County chose another one of his henchmen in the person of E. Mark Sullivan for Chairmanship honors in order that the delegates might become a little better acquainted with the man whom he plans to compel them to vote for, as District Attorney when Scott Peters retires. Does some reader enquire if Mr. Sullivan is a lawyer? We have the best of authority for stating that he is a member of the Bar.—Edgar J. Sherman, William H. Moody, Alden P. White, W. Scott Peters, E. Mark Sullivan!

Communication

Editor of the Townsman:

Dear Sir—

Regarding the communication in your paper of September 24th, by Manager Sullivan of the Eagle B. B. Club, I feel that in justice to the K. of C. team that it is my business to explain the situation.

Mr. Sullivan says, "the series stands one game for each team." The game which the Eagle team claims as a victory by a score of 9-8, on July 10th, was not a victory over the K. of C. team. Manager Hodnett had refused to play the Eagles on that date, and as neither team had a game arranged for that date, I, not the manager of the K. of C. team, arranged a game with Daley, not the manager of the Eagle B. B. C., with the understanding that it was a game between picked teams. My team lost 9-8; since then the other team, which, if I remember rightly was composed nearly entirely of regular Eagle players, has claimed a victory over the K. of C. team. Furthermore, only three men who played on the K. of C. team September 11th played against the Eagles July 10th.

Trusting that this note will settle the dispute which seems to have arisen, I remain,

Respectfully yours,

J. C. CLINTON

Republicans give North Andover Man
a Second Term Wednesday

The Essex County Convention was held at Danvers on Wednesday morning in the Town hall. The convention was entitled to 239 delegates, but as there were no contests, only 144 were present.

The convention was called to order at 10.30 o'clock. E. Mark Sullivan of Ipswich was chosen chairman and Charles O. Dugan of Salem, secretary.

James C. Poor of North Andover was unanimously renominated for county commissioner and David I. Robinson of Gloucester as county treasurer.

The convention adopted resolutions endorsing the candidacy of Joseph N. Peterson of Salem for surveyor of the port of Boston.

Marriage

A wedding of interest to many Andover people was solemnized in Lawrence last Tuesday evening when Andrew Campbell and Isabel Flint Chapman were married by Rev. Henry Wood. The ceremony was performed at the home of the bride in the presence of the relations of the young couple.

As the bridal party entered the prettily decorated parlor John Marsh played Schumann's wedding march. The bride was given away by her father, Miss Miriam I. Forster, a niece of the bride, was ring bearer. The couple were attended by Dr. R. W. Forster and Perley R. Leck served as ushers. At the conclusion of the ceremony Mr. Marsh played Mendelssohn's recessional. The bride was becomingly gowned in a gown of mesaline tulle, trimmed with Brussels lace and she carried bride roses.

After the ceremony a wedding lunch was served and Mr. and Mrs. Chapman left on an early train for a wedding trip. They will be at home to friends at 73 Abbott street after December 1.

SOME ANDOVER INTERESTS

AS SEEN BY "THE SPECTATOR."

As a rule The Spectator does not care to give publicity to stories of childish irreverence, whose innocence, however, takes the irreverence out of them. As this story was related to The Spectator by one of our Andover clergymen The Spectator expects no reproach for telling it. A small Andover youngster had been taken up to Nashua, N. H., on a visit. He had spent a day there and was being put to bed, when his mother observed that he was jumping into bed without saying his prayer. "Why, you have not said your prayer," said she. "Are not going to," said the youngster, from between the sheets. His mother asked the reason. "Ain't any God here in Nashua," "No God here in Nashua! What put that idea into your head?" "Cause God's in Andover—he ain't here!" "Oh, yes, God is in Nashua just the same as he is in Andover," said mamma. The youngster sat up in bed and looked wonderingly. "God in Nashua," he asked, "and in Andover at the same time?" "Certainly," said his mother, "Him! then he must be a pretty long God!" The mother, it is needless for The Spectator to state, drew a moral lesson from the innocent irreverence. An honest objection ought always to be a starting point for new enlightenment.

There was an odd incident here in Andover the other week which reminded The Spectator of a still odder one. A lady, whose garden happens to overlook the garden of her next door neighbor, was out looking at her flowers. Her little dog had accompanied her, and took it into his head to lie down picturesquely by the fence. His mistress, looking down at him as he lay curled up there, with his blue ribbon about his neck, clasped her hands in mock admiration, and exclaimed, looking steadily at him: "Oh! don't you think you look awfully nice in your blue ribbon, down there!" Just as the words "down there" were out of her mouth, she noticed, to her horror, that the lady next door, whose intimate acquaintance she had not the honor of, was exactly in the line of her vision, in the next yard, and that she wore a blue ribbon on her hair! The lady next door looked up in indignation. The dog was invisible from where she stood, and she had no doubt the remark was addressed to her. She flashed about with a fierce movement, rushed back into her house and slammed the door after her. The unintended author of the insult in the meantime stood aghast and helpless.

A teacher here in Andover who believes teachers are not adequately rewarded for the value of their services tells The Spectator that the most pathetic thing in our educational system are the teachers who are retired in their old age without resource. This Andover educator believes a pension fund would permit the substitution of younger men and invite to professional careers men who do not now dare. A certain amount of plain living is essential for the proper kind of high thinking. But the laborer is worthy of the hire of bare maintenance. Deprivation in the present is cheerfully submitted to by those who enter a vocation whose rewards are not in wealth, but the future should be secured against indigence. The Spectator agrees that the teacher should be allowed half a chance to pursue his studies and investigations, and impart his instruction without being constantly chilled by the thought of his fate when his hairs are white and his activity of mind and body is gone.

Fortunately, there is not a great deal of tuberculosis here in Andover but there are just enough advanced cases of the terrible malady which demand the attention of all good Andoverites. The public of Andover must be educated to the point of willing cooperation in the measures of supervision and isolation necessary to obtain control of the disease. The few poor sufferers in Andover should have their last days made easy and an immense burden be lifted from the shoulders of their friends. It is time for Andover along with all other progressive communities to recognize that it is a disgrace to have within our borders a preventable disease against which we are not waging war in all discoverable ways.

Andover Association Meeting

The Andover Association of ministers met with Rev. F. A. Wilson in the parlors of the Free church last Tuesday morning and afternoon.

In spite of the rain there was a large attendance including invited guests from the Protestant clergymen of town.

The morning session was taken up by a long and animated discussion upon important charges in the rules for Ministerial standing and a valuable paper by Rev. J. L. Hoyle of Pelham, upon "The Minister and the Marriage of Divorced Persons." Ladies of the Free church furnished a collation during the noon recess in the dining room. Rev. W. E. Lombard led the afternoon devotional service which was followed by a suggestive paper on Shakespeare's Macbeth by Rev. Arthur Barber of Lawrence and a Review of Dr. Stelzle's book—"Christianity Storm Center" by Rev. F. L. Alger of Lowell.

Baptist Church Notes

The wireless Rally Day message, "Be sure to come," sped hither and yon, from the station at the Baptist Sunday School. In answer to this, the pews last Sunday were filled with pupils from all classes, despite the

The Spectator has had his attention called to the communication from "Business Man" published in last week's issue of The Townsman regarding "the officious and offensive work of the night policeman who has the Square for his beat." A number of citizens have agreed that all the author of that communication says is true but not having made a personal investigation of the matter The Spectator must refrain from taking sides, at least at the present time. The Spectator would like to say, however, that in every community there are one or more police officers who exercise their authority unnecessarily and make themselves really obnoxious in the eyes of all decent citizens. A policeman is your servant, The Spectator's servant—paid by us citizens to preserve law and order. Officious and offensive policemen should not be tolerated in any community.

A Central street gentleman informs The Spectator that he was walking along Main street the other evening, when a lady took him suddenly by the arm and exclaimed, "Did you ever see such a looking thing in your life?" He looked up, surprised, and at the same moment made an effort to escape from the lady's familiar grasp. "Why, what is the matter with you?" she said; and then she looked very hard at the Central street gentleman, and suddenly dropped his arm, and turned very red, looking around in complete confusion; and from the haste with which she joined the another gentleman behind him. The Spectator's friend was convinced that having become separated from her escort unconsciously, she had mistaken for an individual who resembled him physically, to wit, himself. As every Andoverite knows, this is not an infrequent mistake, though it is generally discovered before it has gone so far as this abrupt Andover lady carried it.

Here's another epigram The Spectator overheard in an Andover Square conversation: "I tell you what it is," said a brisk-looking, well-dressed, said a well-fed, rosy-faced Andoverite of thirty-five or thereabouts, "you will never find life worth living until you declare war with the almighty dollar."

The other evening The Spectator was standing in front of the Town House when along came two gentlemen. One of them was accompanied by a canine. "If you will notice it, by a canine," we always love somebody or something beneath us intellectually," said the gentleman with the dog. "Now look at that dog, for instance, I have a real affection for him. The other gentleman's answer afforded The Spectator much merriment. "Your argument is conclusive, so far as the dog is concerned. There can be no doubt about his love for you."

An Elm street gentleman wonders how all our lawyers manage to make a living. When it is remembered that there are plenty of people in Andover or elsewhere who are always ready to give advice, free gratis for nothing, and without money and without price.

Remarked a prominent Andoverite to The Spectator the other day: "Let no man boast that he is free from color blindness until after he has been sent to the dry goods store to match his wife's black silk and has come out of the ordeal satisfactorily."

The Spectator has discovered that Andover has a family of inveterate and involuntary laughers. They have regular spells, during which they roar like all possessed without any apparent cause, and they are unable to stop until the attack has passed. The Spectator suggests that these people should hire out as professional humorists. That would take all the laugh out of them. If it didn't, however, they might try the heroine remedy of subscribing for and (horrid thought!) reading all the comic papers on sale in Lawrence.

An Andoverite, who is engaged in business in Lowell and rides on the train twice daily, complains to The Spectator regarding the "train talker." He says: "Nothing is more annoying when one is reading a newspaper or thinking, than the conversation—often absurd—of gossiping fellow-travellers."

Andover Club Wins

Last Tuesday night at the Essex St. Bowling Alleys the team representing the Andover Club defeated the R. C. O. A. in a rather tame match. The R. C. O. A. was handicapped by the loss of three of its bowlers in Bickell, P. Hardv, and Ned Hammond and consequently was not up to standard form.

The score.

Hudson-Fulton Commission's Banquet to Its Guests

Clermont and Half Moon Leave Their New York Anchorage and Begin Journey Up the Hudson—Dutch Craft in Tow, While Spluttering Steamer Goes Under Own Steam—Tugboat and Submarines Aid as Escorts—Germany and United States Share International Aquatic Honors in Races Between Crews of Warships

New York, Sept. 30.—The personal representatives of the emperors of Germany and Japan; the diplomatic representatives of twenty-five nations and the special delegates of twenty-eight sat down to table last night in the great banquet hall of the Hotel Astor as the official guests of the Hudson-Fulton celebration commission.

There were in addition the officers of eight navies and the admirals of four; a representative of the United States senate in the person of Elihu Root, members of the New York state legislature and officers of the municipality of New York. It was one of the most brilliant banquets that the country has ever seen.

The gold lace of rank, the decorations of distinguished service and the robes of Archbishop Farley, who pronounced the invocation, made the room sparkle with color.

In their speeches were not only the usual amenities, but an appreciation of the double look into history afforded by the reproduction of the Clermont and the Half Moon and the flights of Wilbur Wright over the same waters these craft made famous.

THE HALF MOON

The speeches of Admirals Von Koester and Seymour had been awaited with much interest in view of the recent utterances in this country of Lord Northcliffe on the possibility of war between Germany and England, but after complementing the American navy, both bespoke only peace.

Old-Timers on the Move
Robert Fulton, impersonated by Rev. Sanford C. Hearn of Yonkers, paced the deck of his reconstructed steamboat Clermont of 100 years ago on the way up the Hudson Wednesday. Henry Hudson and the Dutch sailors aboard the Half Moon, in tow, had preceded the Clermont up the river.

THE CLERMONT

The two quaint vessels began the first stage of their trip up the Hudson to Troy. The start was propitious. Under a bright sun and in a crisp autumn wind, the two ships left their anchorage in New York.

It required the weight of two men standing on the paddles to get the stiffness out of the old Clermont's cogs, but once her wheels got turning, she thumped away without difficulty under her own steam, while Captain Davis calmly puffed an ancient clay and proudly declined the assistance of his consort tugs.

The Clermont's decks were piled with cord wood for her big copper boiler. She plodded steadily at about five miles an hour until within sight of Yonkers. Then the water in the boiler became exhausted and the tugs were called to aid her in making port. In the flotilla of small craft which acted as escorts to the Clermont and Half Moon were three United States submarines—the Viper, Tarantula and Cuttlefish, led by the gunboat Castine. The vessels, after being the center of a celebration along the Yonkers water front all the afternoon, moved on last evening for Tarrytown.

The Aquatic Events

International aquatic honors were won by Germany and the United States in the rowing races between crews of the warships now at anchor in the Hudson. The brawny Teutons outstroked the Italians, British, French and Dutchmen in the contests between men of the foreign vessels, while a big crew from the Minnesota showed the way to German, Italian and British tars in the big international race which closed the day's sport.

The regatta also included races exclusively for the men of American warships, revenue cutters and the naval militia. The winners all received silver shields and purses of gold, besides what they picked up in side bets, for the different fleets backed their countrymen heavily.

German Sailors Make a Hit
New York, Oct. 1.—Twenty-five thousand men of arms marched past the massed representatives and special envoys of thirty-seven nations, while two million citizens, seated in grandstands or standing along Fifth avenue, shouted themselves hoarse in cheers. The great military parade was the climax of the Hudson-Fulton celebration.

Although there were tremendous ovations for each body of American troops and unstinted applause in overwhelming volume for the British sailors, the most continuous reception of the day went to the sailors of the German fleet, a picked body of men, who, as they reached the reviewing stand, fell into the formal slap-slap of the parade step and burst into "My Country, 'Tis of Thee," with an overwhelming volume of brasses and a fervor which took away the breath of the listeners.

The benches sat silent for a moment and then, rising bareheaded to their feet, cheered and cheered and cheered again, until the voices gave way and they could only wave hats and handkerchiefs in a long echo of applause.

A Great Pageant

New York, Sept. 29.—Through streets ablaze with bunting and lined with the greatest crowd ever gathered in New York thoroughfares, one of the most elaborate pageants ever witnessed in New York passed before the envoys of twenty-one nations participating in the Hudson-Fulton celebration. And in its passing, which occupied two hours' time, the epoch making scenes of three centuries, represented in gigantic figures of wood, plaster, paint and tinsel, were reviewed.

TAMMANY NAMES GAYNOR FOR MAYOR

Has Its Own Way in Gotham's Democratic Convention

New York, Oct. 1.—The Democratic convention for the city of New York nominated the following ticket last night:

For mayor, William J. Gaynor; comptroller, Robert M. Moore, Manhattan; president of the board of aldermen, John F. Galvin, Manhattan.

Tammany had its own way at the convention, which initiates the Democratic campaign for control of the city government for the next four years. The Tammany cohorts were so strong that they overrode with the greatest ease the opposition headed by Patrick H. McCarren of Brooklyn, who hoped for the re-nomination of Comptroller Metz of that borough.

In the mayoralty fight Gaynor's chief opponent will be Otto T. Barnard, who was nominated by the Republicans a few days ago and who has some assurances of support from the fusionists.

"Dead, Come In"
Richmond, Sept. 30.—After tacking a card bearing the words "Dead, come in," on the front door of his house, Charles Senf, a printer, went to his room and killed himself by shooting, his body being found by neighbors who saw his card on the door.

Two Autoists Killed
New York, Sept. 30.—Parker Norton, proprietor of the Mineola Press, and Edward Baker, proprietor of the Mineola garage, were instantly killed last night in an automobile accident near Mineola, L. I.

Government Feeding the Hungry
Washington, Oct. 1.—The secretary of war has authorized the issue of 20,000 of short army rations to the cyclone sufferers in Terrebonne parish, La.

A $5000 fire last Friday night completely destroyed one of Methuen's oldest landmarks, the old Worthing place on Hampshire street, near Tozier's corner owned and occupied by Charles Day. Besides laying the house and barn in ruins, two horses, four cows and four yearlings and 30 tons of hay were burned. Two cows, two pigs and the hen house were saved. The fire was a spectacular one, it being viewed by hundreds and the reflection was plainly visible in Lawrence.

The cause of the fire is unknown but it started in the rear of the barn and aided by a light breeze, swept through the barn to the dwelling house.

The Methuen fire department had a hard four-mile run through rain and mud and were greatly handicapped by not having a hydrant nearer than 3700 feet from the blaze.

The loss is covered by insurance.

"THREE TWINS" NEXT.

Most Talked of Musical Comedy in America Coming to Boston Theatre Oct. 4.

Sparkling with fun, bubbling over with wit, replete with catchy melody and picturesque and charmingly staged "Three Twins," after a year's triumph in New York, at the Herald Square Theatre, comes on Monday, Oct. 4, to the Boston Theatre. The company is the original one of seventy people, with Clifton Crawford and Bessie McCoy in the two leading roles. "Three Twins" is genuinely diverting in story and humor. It has the praiseworthy quality of absolute freedom from vulgarity and conventional horseplay.

The promiscuous entanglement of the three young men, who resemble each other to the life, with the wife of one, and several would-be-sweethearts of them all, together with a choice assortment of lover's quarrels, and grievous apprehensions arising therefrom, enhanced by the earnest endeavors of an elderly and very German gentleman to restore peace to the various members of the community by treatment in his private sanitarium, all go to constitute a plot that fairly bristles with picturesque possibilities.

Annual Food Fair and Home Furnishing Exposition. The Greatest Ever Held in Mechanics Building, Boston.

What has been most fittingly called "The World's Greatest Food Fair and Home Furnishing Exposition" was opened in the vast Mechanics Building on Huntington Avenue last Monday morning with an attendance of thousands.

One of the most interesting features of the fair are the concerts by the celebrated company of students from Booker T. Washington's Tuskegee Institute at Tuskegee, Alabama. They are heard in plantation melodies and Charles Winter Wood gives character readings and a brief talk on the life and work of Booker T. Washington. Mr. Washington is expected soon and he always brings a message of the greatest value to the people of New England. There are moving picture theatres and many other forms of the same amusements and there is practically no break in the program from the time of opening until the hour of closing. There is a fine restaurant and also a popular price lunch-room in the building; rest and reading rooms and every possible convenience for visitors who come from a distance and plan, as they should, to spend a day at this great food fair.

Kept His Word.

A young fellow in Havana who occupied the position of a reporter fell in love with a girl, the daughter of a wealthy planter. He applied to her father in the orthodox way for his consent to the marriage.

"Presumptuous!" said the father, with eyes flashing. "You, a poverty stricken journalist, and my daughter! Sit, get out of my presence!"

The journalist was very angry. It brought forth a heated declaration of pride:

"Your daughter is too good for me, you say? I will marry a princess before I die." And, with head erect, he left the irate father.

The journalist went to Spain. He wrote poems. The poems were read by the Princess Josephine. There was a meeting. The two fell in love with each other. It is said the journalist was so sincere in his affection that probably he forgot his declaration to the Havana planter. They were both royally happy, eloped, married in Valladolid and were eventually pardoned by Queen Isabella, the one time journalist being received with all the respect due to his new and high rank.

When Ladies Wore Masks.

In the seventeenth century ladies wore masks in public, and great was the variety of face screens that were seen. Ladies who had "coralline" lips preferred short masks, as was natural. For others who wished to hide the lower part of the face the mask was completed by a chin piece of linen, which afterward passed under the chin and over the ears. In 1632 a new mask called the mimi, from the Italian mimesis, was all the rage and threatened to usurp the place of the black one. It was even the cause of violent quarrels between the ladies who held to the latter and those who preferred the latest novelty. Some years later it became the fashion to trim the upper part of the mask with a ruche of lace, to lengthen it with a beard of the same material and even to cover it more or less with lace to the borders of the eyeholes. Young ladies of this period, however, frequently contented themselves with covering the face simply with a piece of black crape for coquetry's sake and to appear the fairer.

The Rack, Pace and Ambles.

The rack is a gait of the horse between a trot and a gallop or canter, in which the fore feet move as in a slow gallop, while the hind feet move as in a trot or pace. It is usually an artificial gait, but is sometimes hereditary or natural. There is much confusion of terms in respect to this gait, due to the fact that the gait itself is somewhat varied, according as the rack carries the one or the other fore foot foremost in the galloping motion of the fore feet; that many confound the rack with the pace, the words often being used synonymously, and that many have mistaken the use of the words "pace" and "amble." There is abundant evidence that the American pace of today is the amble of Europeans of the last century and earlier. The motion of the hind feet is the same in the trot, the pace and the rack. In the trot the diagonal hind and fore feet move nearly simultaneously. In the pace or amble the hind and fore feet of the same side move nearly simultaneously.—Boston Globe.

Exploding Ice Bubbles.

The intensely cold nights of Siberia, says a writer, produce a curious phenomenon. Occasionally the silence is broken by a loud report resembling the boom of a cannon. The noise is caused by the bursting of an ice bubble on a river. The streams coming from the hills are incased in ice six to nine inches thick, and as the water descends faster than it escapes through the river the result is a heavy hydrostatic pressure. This first causes the ice upon the river to rise in mounds often six to eight feet high. For a time they seem to yield elastically to the pressure, but finally can withstand no more and burst with an explosive report. The water rushes out, soon freezing, however, and causing further explosions. The writer asserts that he has seen scores of these ice hillocks within a few miles.

Muskat and Perfumery.

The question is asked us whether the musk of the common muskrat is not used to make cheap perfumery. We have never heard of such use of muskrat musk, nor can we find anything definite on the subject in the books. Application to a large manufacturer of perfumery, however, brings out the information that some years ago musk from the muskrat was tried out for perfumery purposes, but was not found available for this use. Not a single instance of its being used now is known. The musk of commerce comes chiefly from the musk deer.—Forest and Stream.

Making Money On the Farm

XII.—Poultry Management

By C. V. GREGORY,
Author of "Home Course in Modern Agriculture"
Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.

GOOD blood counts in poultry as well as in any other class of live stock. If the chickens and eggs are produced for market purposes only they may be improved by purchasing pure bred males of the desired breed every year. At best, however, the flock can only be made high grade by this method. The enterprising poultryman will soon begin to long for a flock of pure breeds. Such a flock, if carefully selected and bred, furnishes a splendid source of income that is largely independent of the market price of eggs or dressed poultry. The demand for choice pure bred eggs for setting and for pure bred males is good and the price very satisfactory. A trade of this kind when once established will add considerably to the income from the farm.

Getting a Start in Pure Breeds.

Even where the flock is kept for market purposes only it pays to have pure breeds. They look better and give more economical returns for the food eaten. The cheapest way to get a start in pure breeds is to buy a sitting or two of eggs. It is of utmost importance that they be purchased of some reliable breeder; otherwise disappointment is almost sure to follow. Insist that the eggs be not more than five days old when shipped, that they be well wrapped and that the basket be sealed. Have the eggs shipped by express and refuse to accept them if the seals have been tampered with. These precautions are necessary if you would be sure of getting what you pay for. A basket with a handle is the best package for shipping eggs, as it will be carried instead of thrown.

It has been found by repeated experiments that eggs hatched with an incubator do not produce chicks with as much vitality as those hatched under hens. This is not very noticeable the first season, but if continued year after year will seriously impair the vitality of the flock. It is a general practice among successful poultrymen to set a few of the best eggs under hens and use the chickens thus obtained to replenish the breeding flock.

Value of a Breeding Pen.

The plan of having a breeding pen from which to select eggs for hatching is a very good one. In this pen a dozen or thirteen of the best hens in the flock are kept. If trap nest records have been kept this will determine to a large extent which hens are to be put into the breeding pen. With the most breeds the size and conformation of the hens are the most important points. For a breeding pen of thirteen hens one male is all that is necessary, but he should be the best that can be secured. Some breeders practice keeping two males, putting one in with the hens one day and the other the next. In this way the males are kept in a better condition, and the chickens are likely to be a little stronger. No roosters will be needed in the general flock. Indeed, the eggs will keep all the better for not being fertilized.

The care and feed of the breeding flock should be much the same as those outlined for laying hens in article No. 11. The main thing is to keep them healthy. Do not overfeed, but keep them in vigorous condition. If possible the breeding pen should be large enough so as to include a little green feed, such as clover or rape. If this cannot be done a little forage cut and put in the pen every day will be relished.

The sitting hens should have a small house or compartment to themselves. This will avoid the great annoyance of having nests broken up and fresh eggs laid in with those almost ready to hatch. This house should be provided with charcoal, and oyster shells. A dust bath in which the hens can roll will help to keep them free from lice. Oats, wheat and some sort of green food make a good ration. When very expensive eggs are set it is best to keep each hen in a compartment by herself, as there will be less risk of having the nest broken up. Soon after the chickens are hatched they can be marked by punching a hole through the web of the toe, so that they can be picked out from the rest of the flock in the fall.

Selecting the Incubator.

Although incubators are not well adapted to raising chickens for the breeding flock, they are indispensable to the poultryman who is raising fowls for market. They are more reliable and more easily cared for than hens. They are ready to go to work at any time, so that early chickens can be raised in much larger numbers than with hens. The broody hens can be broken up and will soon go to laying again. Not the least among the advantages of the incubator is the fact that the chicks will be free from lice when hatched.

There are two general types of incubators, the hot air and the hot water machines. The heat in the hot air machine is furnished by currents of warm air which circulate around the egg chamber and in the hot water machine by hot water circulating through metal pipes. The hot air machine is simpler and generally gives better satisfaction.

The two most important points to consider in buying an incubator are the lamp and the regulator, since upon the efficiency of these depends the maintenance of a constant temperature in the egg chamber. The lamp and chimney should be of heavy metal. The reservoir should hold enough oil for twenty-eight to thirty hours' run. The burner should be of brass, with a cotton wick which fits snugly and yet works easily. It is important to use the highest grade of oil that can be obtained, as a steady heat cannot be maintained with cheap oil.

The function of the regulator is to raise or lower a valve over the lamp, thus lessening or increasing the amount of hot air that goes into the machine. Of all the many kinds of regulators none works more satisfactorily than the double disk type. The disks should be four or five inches across. If smaller they are not sensitive enough. The regulator should be placed toward the back part of the egg chamber and high enough so that it will be well up out of the way. Avoid incubators that have the regulator lever on top of the machine. Such a lever is always in the way and is liable to be bent or displaced. A machine that has the lever at the end or under a false top is much more satisfactory. There is nothing in the way on top, and it can be used as a table for testing, turning and cooling eggs.

The body of the incubator should be made of well fitted hard wood, with three walls and two dead air spaces, so as to be as little affected by the outside temperature as possible. The legs should be strong and firmly attached. The doors should be of double glass. The egg trays should slide easily, and there should be at least three and a half inches clearance between the eggs and the top of the chamber. The nursery below the trays should be at least four inches deep. This lower space is needed for the newly hatched chicks. This nursery is sometimes made to slide out like a drawer. This is a great convenience in removing the chickens.

A small hole covered with a removable slide will provide all the ventilation needed in addition to that obtained when the doors are open for turning the eggs. A wet sponge kept under the egg trays will usually furnish sufficient moisture. The amount of moisture needed can be determined by the size of the air cell in the big end of the egg. If this gets to be more than one-fifth the size of the egg more moisture should be supplied.

Handling the incubator.

There is no better place for the incubator than a clean, dry cellar. It should be run empty for at least a day before the eggs are put in, so as to get the flame and regulator adjusted. The flame should be clean and bright and the regulator set so as to maintain a constant temperature of 100 F.

It takes a day or two to get the eggs warmed up after they are put in. By the third day the thermometer should be up to 103 and should be kept there the rest of the time. The eggs should be tested the third day and infected or dead ones taken out. The eggs should be turned every morning until the nineteenth day. This can be done by rolling them over with the hand or placing another tray over them and turning them completely over. After turning they should be left out ten or fifteen minutes to cool. After the nineteenth day the incubator should be kept closed until the hatch is about completed.

The chickens should be left in the incubator for twenty-four hours or longer after hatching. After that they may be given to broody hens that have been saved up for that purpose or placed in brooders. A good brooder run at a proper temperature is much more satisfactory than hens for raising chickens on a large scale. A type in which the heat comes up in the middle, with one or more circular partitions of cloth reaching nearly to the floor, is the most satisfactory.

DERRY A. A. 4, BALLARDVALE 3

Ballardvale went to Derry, N. H. Saturday and were defeated in an exciting game by a score of 4 to 3. For Ballardvale Cronin held Derry down to three hits, but was a trifle unsteady at critical points in the game. Dearborn was injured severely in the fifth inning and was succeeded by McGee who played fine ball. O'Brien also played good ball.

The star for Derry was G. Tyler, who struck out 19 men. He received good support from his team-mates. A feature of the game was a brilliant backward running catch by Kennedy which cut off a run.

The score.

Course of Entertainments

Arrangements are fast being completed for the Popular Entertainment Course to be given in the Town Hall this winter under the management of the R. C. O. A. The hearty response with which the solicitors have been met in every quarter shows the appreciation of the townspeople. Some of the leading talent of Boston has been secured and there is no doubt but that an interesting program will be presented each evening.

The first entertainment will be given on Friday evening, December 10, when the Standish Male Quartette will render an interesting program of vocal selections and readings. Numerous press notices and editorials might be quoted as evidences of their popularity and quality.

On December 31st the Strathmore Company will appear with violin, piano, and vocal solos and readings. Ashton Lewis, violin virtuoso receives the hearty recommendation of leading music critics.

The Edwin R. Weeks Company, on January 21, presents a varied program of operettas, parodies, dialogues, comedies, impersonations and vocal, violin and piano solos. This is an exceptionally meritorious company and Andover is indeed fortunate to hear them.

The last entertainment, on February 11, will consist of a classical program of stringed instruments, flute, piano and vocal selections by the Colonial Concert Company. This company is the only one on the list comprised entirely of young ladies.

The course tickets for this series are $1.50 and may now be obtained from members of the R. C. O. A., or sometime next month they will be placed on sale at some prominent place in town.

Association Football.

The Andover Football Team traveled to Methuen last Saturday to play the team of that name in a Lawrence, Lowell District League game. The teams lined up under Mr. Hartley as follows: Methuen Bertwhistle, Littleton, Briggs, Le Page, Rowbottom, Butler, Berube, Clark, Riley, Briggs, Jennings. Andover, Monroe, Gormorice, Falconer, McKillop, Meldrum, Haddon, Gordon. Methuen won the spin and took advantage of the hill on the first half. Andover played with ten men all this half, Stirling failing to appear. Methuen made tracks for Andover's goal right at the start, but the backs sent them to the other end of the field, but Methuen was not long in bringing the leather back again; Jennings and Briggs working well together, but their effort at goal was fruitless. The Andovers were greatly handicapped playing with ten men, Falconer on the right having no support, but they were giving as much as they got. Methuen had a look in at this time, and Jennings from an offside position scored Methuen first goal. Methuen took the game in hand for a time and hemmed Andover in. Monroe saving from all directions. He led the forwards from a goal kick and the left wing secured a corner which was got rid of by the Methuen goal keeper fisting well out and Berube getting hold of the ball went the whole length of the field and scoring the second goal for Methuen this was a great goal and deserved the cheer he got. After this the Andovers seemed to waken up and keeping the ball in Methuen's half they kept pegging away at the ball until Gordon found a resting place in the net for the ball, this was Andover's first goal and it was well worked for. From the kick off they were back again and they had hard luck in not equalizing. The goal keeper putting the ball behind just before Gordon's foot. The Andovers were now going great, and bent on getting even, but the whistle sounded for half time with score Methuen 2 Andover 1.

Methuen started the game in the second half but could not make much headway, for Andover was playing a great game, and held Methuen to their own end. Both teams at this time showed signs of fatigue; but Methuen rallying came away with a burst on the right, and secured a corner, from which they scored their third goal; Monroe slipping in attempting to get at the ball. The Andovers went at it again and had most of the play till the end. They were very weak in the half-back line Tart, being best. The game was full of interest now with Andover pressing all the time but they could not score. The game ending 3 goal to 1 in favor of Methuen.

Jackson of Andover was the hero of the game. His punting was a feature worth seeing. Monroe played a safe game in goal. The half-backs were the weakest of the team except A. Tart, who had to assist the others and played a sterling game. The forwards were a good lot with Haddon and Falconer the best. Andover will play the British Americans on the Andover grounds tomorrow afternoon when the following will line up for Andover. Goal, Monroe, Baco, Nicoll, Jackson half-backs, Gordon, Matthew, Tart, forwards, Falconer, McGee, Meldrum and Gordon, Haddon. Reserves, McKillop, Gault, Merrice. Harry Rhodes of Lawrence will referee the game. Kick off at three o'clock.

Since the last state grange meeting twenty-seven new granges have been organized in New York state and two reorganized. There are now 727 granges, with a membership of about 88,000.

DURING THE LONG SCHOOL SEASON

A SCHOOLHOUSE without a telephone would seem strangely isolated in these days of constant communication.

The telephone is always ready in case either parent or children are wanted in a hurry.

If your "little one" starts off in the morning in not the best of health you can rest easy as to his well-being with the telephone at hand. In this way the home and the school work in closer harmony in the care of the youngsters.

Then, too, the Long Distance Bell Telephone lines put parents and the older children, away at boarding school, into constant communication.

Thus the TELEPHONE takes lots of worry off the minds of thousands of fathers and mothers, that would otherwise be there when their children are out of their sight.
